TAKE A LOOK AT THE RESULTS

Do you like what you see? Are you spending too much on clothing so that you're not saving anything for that house you want to buy? Or perhaps you think you ought to be spending less on dining out and more on medical insurance. If you've never made out a budget before, you may be confused as to how much you ought to spend in each of these categories. The truth is that no one can make that decision for you. You have to decide for yourself which things are important in your budget. But it may help to take a look at how a typical family of four divides up its expenditures and analyze the results for your usage.
