The Park Record Editorial, September 12-14, 2012

Timothy steered district through turbulence with steady hand
Posted: 09/11/2012 05:08:35 PM MDT

When Park City School District Superintendent Roy Timothy took the reins of the Park City School District in June of 2007, it is unlikely he anticipated riding into the nation’s worst recession since the 1930s. It would have been more reasonable to assume that he was looking forward to helping a prosperous, enlightened district in its efforts to stand out as one of the best in the country.

The district’s focus, however, was sharply redirected in the wake of the economic downturn in September 2008. After years of watching tax revenues (including a voter-supported voted leeway to support local schools) grow, tax revenues sank and, with them, state funding was also sharply curtailed.

Fortunately for constituents of the Park City School District, their new superintendent had experience at almost every level in the school system from elementary school teacher to deputy superintendent of the Utah State Office of Education. And he used that experience to carefully guide Park City’s students, teachers and taxpayers through an extremely difficult financial crisis.

Timothy recently announced that he is leaving his post next month. He is moving on to accept a position as the executive director of the Utah Education Network, which provides online services and technology training to schools around the state. He will be especially difficult to replace because, in addition to his administrative skills, Timothy brought a calm, professional demeanor to a district that has seen its share of contentious politics.

Most recently, Timothy’s patience and expertise has been put to the test in the district’s lengthy teacher salary negotiations, which are still ongoing. As in districts all over the country, tough choices must be made in order to balance shrinking budgets with rising expenses (like health benefits) and teachers’ union entitlements. In Park City, Timothy can be credited with keeping all of the stakeholders at the table over the course of several rounds of these kinds of brutal negotiations.

School district issues, even at their most mundane, carry additional emotional freight because they impact our children. It takes a very special leader to chart a clear-eyed path through the economic challenges and political distractions while adhering to the community’s high standards. Timothy has done exactly that and the school board which will undergo a transition after November’s election will be hard pressed to find a person with same level of experience and integrity.

Instructure Data Issue – Discussion

Description

This is a discussion item to follow up on any outstanding questions Board members may have regarding the data access error within the Canvas Learning Management system that occurred September 12.

The following media release was issued by UEN on September 14, 2012. Because UEN had valuable support from Canvas administrators and public information officers from higher and public education, this was addressed as a unified statewide consortium.

Brief Data Access Error within Canvas Learning Management System

SEPTEMBER 14, 2012 – This week during a maintenance update of the statewide Canvas learning management system, hosted by Utah-based software company Instructure, teacher-level permissions were inadvertently granted to select students, allowing them access to assignment scores in specific courses.

The unauthorized access occurred during two windows for a total of 105 minutes: Tuesday morning between 12:30-1:45 a.m. and again from 11:00-11:30 a.m. An immediate fix was applied after the second incident.

All colleges and universities within the Utah System of Higher Education were affected. Canvas software logs specifically identify all activity on the system during the relevant time periods. A review of the data shows that of the 174,000 students in the Utah System of Higher Education, 278 students were given teacher-level access during the periods in question and therefore were able to view grades and 39 changes were made. When discovered, all modified data was reverted back to the original grades.

“Instructure is committed to the data integrity of our schools and took immediate action to resolve this issue,” said Mitch Macfarlane, Instructure’s Vice President of Client Services and Products. “While Instructure recognizes the significance of this permission error, both the timeliness of the response and the ability to restore data to its original state was made possible due to the existing architecture of Canvas. We have added safeguards in the maintenance process and bolstered automated permissions testing.”

Ogden-Weber Tech College also experienced the incident. In addition, the Granite, Park City, and Canyons school districts along with Electronic High School were affected with one student in each district accessing the data. Universities and districts affected have compiled data logs of specific student activity and have contacted instructors who will determine an appropriate course of action in conjunction with school leadership.

“Ensuring the confidentiality of our student data is essential and we are actively engaged with Instructure to ensure that this kind of incident will not happen again,” said UEN acting executive director Eric Denna, who is also the higher education co-chair of the UEN board.
Recommendation

This is an information item. No further action is required of the Board members at this time.

Description
Ray Walker has been actively working to fill the slate of advisory committee representatives and will provide an update for the Board.

In many cases, the advisory council would likely function similar to the former Public Education Advisory Committee (chaired by Rick Gaisford); Higher Education Advisory Committee (chaired by Cyd Grua); and the subcommittees of the former UEN Steering Committee. Board members are asked to discuss how they would like to see the Advisory Council function, as suggested in the following discussion questions:

1. What is the length of the terms for advisory council members? – two years?
2. How to stagger terms? – odd and even fiscal years?
3. Replacement of council members that may need to resign? – Board or appointing entity?
4. What kind of communication should be set up? – UEN staff liaisons, level of Board involvement, communication between Board, council, and staff?
5. How frequently should they meet? – perhaps quarterly?
6. What is the role of the advisory council in meetings, retreats, other planning activities?
7. What is the process for setting the council agenda and reporting their activities to the Board? – perhaps a draft agenda is circulated with items coming from the council itself, UEN staff, the Board, and other constituent groups?
8. How is the council chaired? Appointed from both higher ed and public ed? Co-chairs or alternating each year?

Recommendation
It is recommended that Board members review and approve the advisory council membership, and provide guidance to UEN staff on implementation of the advisory council processes.

Communication Plan – Discussion

Description

The 45-day general session of the Utah Legislature will convene on Capitol Hill January 28, 2013. UEN’s approach with lawmakers will build upon the successful approach we used last year.

To obtain our annual funding request our plan is to build and maintain relationships with legislators and in the process convey information about UEN’s accomplishments and initiatives. We will also seek to respond effectively and transparently to any questions or concerns. An outline for the research, planning, implementation and evaluation of this approach is attached.

Recommendation

This is an information item. No further action is required of the Board members at this time.

UEN Diversity Guidelines – Action

Description

UEN must adopt new guidelines designed to fulfill our commitment to diversity and meet new CPB guidelines. A draft was presented to the Board during the August meeting. It has subsequently been reviewed by legal counsel with the Office of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action at the University of Utah, resulting in minor edits to clarify terms. The attached final draft is presented for Board approval.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting has, through a group of station leaders and its Board of Directors, implemented new requirements for diversity policy to be adopted by stations. UEN Board members are asked to review the new requirements and policy language attached. Essentially, this is the same as our current practices except:

1. This formalizes the policy
2. This adds a requirement for annual diversity training of staff, Board members and Advisory Council members (CPB offers other options for compliance, but some don’t apply and this seemed the least cumbersome and most useful).

Excerpts from the CPB guidelines were presented in the August UEN Board meeting.

Recommendation

The policy must be formally adopted by the Board before September 30, 2012.
UEN Diversity Guidelines (final draft, for Board approval)

1. Purpose
   1.1. The purpose of the Utah Education Network Diversity Guidelines is to establish commitment to diversity in our programs and services, workforce, management, governing board and advisory council and to implement guidelines and initiatives to achieve that goal in accordance with University of Utah (hereinafter University) Policy, as well as State and Federal antidiscrimination law.
   1.2. UEN is committed to employment, management, and services that reflect and support the diversity of Utah as part of our broader goal to enrich the educational experiences and successes of all members of our state. UEN operates under the University guidelines and mission statement which reads in part: “We zealously preserve academic freedom, promote diversity and equal opportunity, and respect individual beliefs.”
   1.3. As a public broadcaster, UEN also meets applicable FCC diversity guidelines.
   1.4. As an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer, the University prepares and maintains an Affirmative Action Plan, which includes efforts taken by the University to recruit, hire, and retain a diverse and qualified workforce. The University’s Affirmative Action Plan is available for inspection by the public, by contacting: The Office of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action, 201 South Presidents Circle, Room 135, Salt Lake City, UT 84112. TEL/TDD: 801-581-8365.

2. Guidelines
   2.1. Employees
      a. UEN is committed to having a staff and management structure that reflects the diversity of its community. Further, UEN educates managers and staff on how to work effectively in a diverse environment, prevent discrimination, and promote inclusiveness.
      b. UEN adheres to all University Policies and Procedures regarding Equal Opportunity and Nondiscrimination in order to prevent any form of discrimination, harassment, or prejudicial treatment because of race/ethnicity, color, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, age, disability, or protected veteran status.
      c. Managers are encouraged to interview a well-qualified and diverse candidate pool for open positions.
      d. Augmenting UEN’s diversity efforts, the University of Utah maintains a website that provides hiring managers with tools and resources for the identification and recruitment of well qualified applicants for staff positions, who have experience in working with and reaching out to a diverse population.
      e. UEN participates in a wide variety of job fairs, in order ensure a more qualified and diverse applicant pool.
      f. UEN management and staff participate in an annual anti-discrimination/harassment and diversity training program.

2.2. Boards and Councils
a. UEN’s broadcast license holder is the Utah Board of Regents. The selection strategy for members is to recruit individuals who have a wide variety of experiences, including reaching out to and working with a diverse population and who are able to foster an environment of inclusion. Similarly, the UEN Governing Board and Advisory Council strategy is to recruit a well-qualified and diverse cross section of members who are reflective of the broader community and the educational constituents served.

b. UEN Governing Board and Advisory Council members participate in an annual diversity training program.

2.3. Services

a. As a public institution, UEN staff, management, and Board members are committed to increased accessibility and accountability to all residents of the state by providing services that can enhance the organization’s responsiveness to an increasingly diverse world of customers, improve relations with the surrounding community, increase the organization’s ability to cope with change, and expand the creativity of the organization.

Prioritize FY2014 UEN Legislative Budget Request – Action

Description

ELEMENTARY K-6 CIRCUIT FUNDING PHASE 2 OF 3
$250,000 ongoing

UEN requests $250,000 of ongoing funds for FY2014. In FY2013, the Utah Legislature appropriated $250,000 of on-going funds for elementary and charter school connectivity. UEN matched the state funds with $200,000 which was achieved from operating efficiencies. School districts and UEN both participate in funding elementary Internet connections. However, depending on when schools upgraded their connections, UEN support for circuit charges is not equally applied. With the FY2013 state appropriation, the K-6 schools circuit funding gap is now approximately $900,000. UEN will make an on-going funding request of $250,000 this year and $250,000 next year and will continue to strive and achieve operational efficiencies of $200,000 in each of the next two years to provide equity for elementary circuit funding across all K-6 Utah schools.

ON-GOING CAPITAL BUDGET REPLACEMENT
$1,600,000 ongoing

UEN requests $1,600,000 ongoing for replacement of a variety of capital equipment including networking hardware, and Interactive Video Conference (IVC) equipment at schools and district offices that are reaching their estimated useful life (some as old as seven to ten years) as well as battery and electrical equipment, and internal UEN data center and system server and storage hardware.

LEARNING CONTENT MANAGEMENT SYSTEM INFRASTRUCTURE (KALTURA/EQUELLA)
One-time $1,026,000 for Licensing; $453,000 ongoing for maintenance

This request provides critical software that supports the Learning Management System to provide multimedia elements for courses and instructional use. New state initiatives such as the Technology Intensive Concurrent Enrollment (TICE) courses, adaptive online assessment, and the use of electronic textbooks in K-12 require this media infrastructure. Kaltura encodes and streams video using new protocols that work for desktop and mobile devices. Equella provides cataloging and presentation of multimedia elements through the Canvas course system, Pioneer Library, and the teacher portal my.UEN. This supports all of K-12 and higher education and represents considerable cost-savings as compared to the institutional prices for these critical systems if purchased separately by each institution.
UEN ONE-TIME CAPITAL REPLACEMENT MICROWAVE SYSTEM AND IVC OPERATIONS

$3,400,000 one-time

UEN requests $3,400,000 of one-time dollars for replacement of a variety of capital equipment of which 50% is IVC equipment. The capital replacement budget includes replacement of network hardware, and IVC equipment at schools and district offices that have exceeded their estimated useful life. All equipment being requested is 6 years or older with over 50% IVC equipment.

Historical IVC One-Time Funding

- FY2005 .......... $ 240,000
- FY2006 .......... $ 800,000
- FY2007 .......... $1,000,000
- FY2008 .......... $ 865,000

Recommendation

It is recommended that the Board approve this FY2014 UEN Legislative Budget request.
