ENGLISH LANGUAGE ARTS

INTRODUCTION

Literacy is the ability to read, write, speak, and listen. When students utilize these skills, they begin to express and understand ideas and opinions, make decisions, solve problems, and achieve goals. Achieving literacy is a lifelong learning process. Literacy enables students to participate fully in their community and society.

Language is the basis for understanding and communicating in most aspects of life. The development of language begins in infancy, and by the preschool years, many children have a vocabulary that includes several thousand words and continues to increase at a remarkable rate. One of the best predictors of reading success is the number of spoken words a preschooler understands and uses.

Research has supported the use of evidence-based literacy practices using systematic, explicit, cumulative instruction when teaching the seven essential components of literacy: oral language, phonological awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary, comprehension, and writing. According to research, it is recommended that preschool teachers prepare children for later reading instruction. They can do so by introducing the five critical building blocks for literacy including phonological awareness, letter identification, vocabulary knowledge, print concepts, and a positive attitude toward reading (Henry, 2019). The lack of phonemic awareness is the most powerful determinant of the likelihood of failure to read (Adams, 1998). Early phonological awareness skills usually develop during the preschool years and include rhyming, alliteration, segmenting words into syllables, and identifying the first sounds in words. Research suggests these early phonological awareness skills facilitate the development of letter sound knowledge (Cardos-Martins et al., 2011). The levels of phonological awareness can build on each other advancing from word awareness to syllable awareness, to onset-rime awareness, to individual phoneme awareness. “Children’s language develops on a continuum and moves from large to increasingly smaller segments of language.” (Cunningham & Zibulsky, 2014).
ADULTS SUPPORT LEARNING IN ENGLISH LANGUAGE ARTS WHEN THEY:

- Engage in conversations with children.
- Read daily from a variety of texts, including narrative and informational genres.
- Create a language- and print-rich environment, including reading, listening, writing, and dramatic play centers, eye level alphabet charts, picture/word labels, and samples of children's work. Modifications and support in children's primary language may be provided as necessary.
- Provide activities that increase phonological awareness. Phonological awareness includes phonemic awareness, onset-rime awareness, syllable awareness, and word awareness.
- Use a wide variety of media and presentation forms, including animated and engaging storytelling, pictures or drawings, posters, appropriate short multimedia presentations, drama, show and tell, signs, paintings, sculptures, puppets, and hand signs.
- Sing a wide variety of songs, including those that reflect the cultural makeup of the world.
- Provide a variety of texts such as menus, books, magazines, charts, record sheets, recipes, telephone directories, journals, theater programs, newspapers, maps, instruction booklets, movie or music labels, food and product labels (including those in different languages), and store flyers.
- Provide activities that increase awareness of the rhythm of language, such as clapping the syllables in children's names or other familiar words.
- Provide opportunities for multiple readings/retellings of nursery rhymes or stories.
- While reading to children, ask questions about what may happen next, how the book relates to their own experiences, how the characters in the story are feeling, etc. Encourage children to re-enact stories using dramatic play or puppets.
- Supply a variety of age-appropriate writing tools and materials in all areas of the classroom, including thin short pencils, crayons, markers, whiteboards, glue sticks, magnetic letters, paintbrushes, etc.
- Model proper writing in different ways, such as writing down what children say, labeling their drawings, writing questions that could be asked of a visitor, or making a list of foods.
Strategies & Activities for 3-YEAR-OLDS

Strand 1: ACADEMIC AND SOCIAL LANGUAGE: SPEAKING AND LISTENING

Language development is crucial in the preschool years to establish foundational skills for all future academic and social success. Language skills include the ability to speak as well as listen.

GENERAL ACTIVITIES AND STRATEGIES FOR SPEAKING AND LISTENING.

Encourage speaking and listening practice in daily activities:

- Circle time (sharing, show and tell)
- Snack time
- Recess time
- Classroom jobs (weather, calendar, teacher helper, snack helper)
- Shared writing
- Question of the day
- Poetry, chants, songs, nursery rhymes and fingerplays
- Adults engage children in conversation throughout all routines and activities

Model and practice listening skills, speaking skills and taking turns in conversation:

- Think, Pair, Share - Turn to peer and share response to a question posed by the teacher. (e.g. What will happen next in the story? What is your favorite classroom activity?)
- Sentence Starters - Give students an example of how to start responding to a question in a complete sentence. (e.g. I like ______. My favorite part of the story was ______.)
- Use puppets or role-play to help children express thoughts, feelings, and ideas or retell a story.

Provide materials in centers that promote social interaction, conversation and turn taking:

- Dramatic play: community helper hats, costumes, tools
- Blocks with accessories (people, cars, animals, etc.)
- Floor puzzles and games

Strand 2: READING

By exposing children to a wide variety of texts, and surrounding them with a print-rich environment, they begin to develop foundational reading skills. These skills are divided into five sub-strands: concepts of print, phonological awareness, word recognition, recall information, and comprehension.

GENERAL ACTIVITIES AND STRATEGIES FOR READING

- Adults engage children in conversation throughout all routines and activities
- Organize reading and listening centers with a variety of stories, songs and books, including some from different cultures.
- Through read-alouds and a classroom library, provide a wide variety of texts. For example:
  - Picture books
  - Poems
  - Wordless books
  - Multicultural books
  - Books that include characters with special needs
  - Fables and folktales
  - Fantasy vs. Reality
- During shared reading:
  - Identify the author as the person who writes the words and the illustrator as the person who creates the pictures.
  - Introduce and explain new vocabulary.
  - Children identify and label what is happening in the illustrations of a story.
  - Teacher and children make connections between the story and their own personal experiences
  - Reread stories to focus on different aspects of the story and ask different questions.
- Do a picture walk prior to reading the text.
- Label items in the classroom and in centers.
- Create picture cards with print or on shelves to help students clean up.
- Teach a kinesthetic movement while teaching letter names and sounds.
- Show alphabet cards. Name the letter and provide the sound.
- Sing alphabet songs with motions, movements, cards, pictures, etc.
- Teach the children sign language for the letters.

This includes rhyming, identifying parts of words such as syllables, segmenting individual sounds (also called phonemes), and exploring how audible sounds blend to make words. It is important to note that phonemic awareness practice is auditory and does not include text or written letters.

Writing refers to how children represent spoken words with written language. The development of fine motor control in early childhood is essential for early writing skills. Fine motor skills develop at different rates for each child. Forming legible letters is an emerging expectation for 4-year-olds. Refer to Strand One: Fine Motor within the Physical Education Standards for more information.

| ELA 4 yr.2.12: Begin to recognize the beginning sounds of words and progress towards recognizing ending sounds of words. | - Sort pictures/objects by first sounds.
- Play “I Spy,” looking for items that start with a specific sound.
- Identify children or objects by saying the initial sound and then the rest of the word. (I see /S/- am or I see a /b/-all) (Paulson & Moats 2018).
- Using a puppet, tell the children he only likes to eat items that begin with a certain sound. (ex. /m/ for milk, mashed potatoes, mangos, etc.) (Paulson & Moats 2018). |

| ELA 4 yr.2.14: Identify the names and sounds of some upper- and lowercase letters of the alphabet, including those in their own name. | - 2015 Head Start Early Learning Outcomes Framework indicates that children transitioning to kindergarten should know 18 uppercase letter names, 15 lowercase letter names, and have some letter-sound knowledge. (Paulson & Moats 2018).
  - Place a letter on a fly swatter or magnifying glass and go on a letter hunt around the room or school building.
  - Listen to a variety of alphabet songs. You could also encourage students to point to the letters as it is sung. |
| ELA 4 yr.2.15: Begin to recognize some printed words that are seen frequently (for example, their own name, the names of classmates, labels in the classroom environment). | Establish a daily routine for name and letter recognition.
  - Have sign in and sign out sheets for attendance.
  - Place students’ names on coat racks, cubbies, and chairs.
  - Create name-building cards with magnetic letters.
  - Ask a question of the day using their name in response.
  - Have students line up if their names start with specific letter sounds. |

Strand 3: WRITING

Writing refers to how children represent spoken words with written language. The development of fine motor control in early childhood is essential for early writing skills. Fine motor skills develop at different rates for each child. Forming legible letters is an emerging expectation for 4-year-olds. Refer to Strand One: Fine Motor within the Physical Education Standards for more information.

GENERAL ACTIVITIES AND STRATEGIES FOR WRITING

Writing materials should be easily accessible and present in all learning centers. This could include:

- Variety of paper (different textures/colors/sizes)
- Variety of writing utensils
- Stencils
- Stamps
- Envelopes
- Greeting cards/postcards
- Sign in Sheets
- Checklists
- Turn taking in popular centers
- Chalkboards
- Whiteboards
- Clipboards
- Flat surfaces
- Sand
- Salt
- Shaving cream
- Digital tablets

Create a KWL chart (what students know about the topic, what they want to know about, and what they learned).

Include writing experiences as part of the daily routine.

- Sign-in by writing name
- Morning message
- Journals
- Daily Schedule
- Draw/write in response to a book or activity
- Provide materials and opportunities throughout the day for children to use pictures, scribbles, letters or words to write notes, labels, signs, stories, letters, messages, etc.
- Model and invite children to read or talk about their writing in whole group, small group and center settings.
- Model and provide shared writing opportunities.
  - Journal classroom experiences.
  - Create books about an event.
  - Create a class poster or book about an activity.

- Journal classroom experiences.
- Create books about an event.
- Create a class poster or book about an activity or story.
- Children dictate and explain their drawings while the teacher writes what the student says.
- After listening to a story, have students draw a picture of a personal experience they have had. |
| ELA 4 yr.3.2: Represent spoken words with written language using letter-like marks and scribbles. | Provide a paper with 4 squares, having students write and/or draw something on a topic. |
| ELA 4 yr.3.3: Print some letters of the alphabet, including those in their own name. | Have students practice writing their names by signing into class, excusing themselves for recess, signing up for learning centers, etc. Students can participate in a joint project (map, picture, recipe, story) and write and/or draw together as they complete the project. |
The Picture Story/Word Story Strategy is used with permission from the following source:

This strategy relates to Strand 3: Writing.

Picture Story/Word Story Strategy

You can model this strategy with a whole group or with a small group at a tabletop or center activity. This strategy easily transfers to many types of writing activities.

MATERIALS:
Chart paper (for whole group), regular paper (for a small group)

STRATEGIES & ACTIVITIES

1. Draw a horizontal line across the middle of the paper, visually dividing it in half. This allows you to describe the concepts top, bottom, half, center, and middle.

2. Explain that the top half of the page will be the Picture Story and the bottom half will be the Word Story. Tell students that the Pictures Story is a drawing and tells what they are going to write about, and the Word Story is what they write.

3. Say, “Here is our Picture Story.” Draw a picture (stick figures are fine) on the top half of the page related to a recent activity (e.g., reading a book, going on a field trip, completing a project). Use self-talk to describe what you are drawing, being sure to include relevant vocabulary and enriching oral language descriptions.

4. Say, “I’m going to write a Word Story. I am a grown-up and here is how grown-ups write.” On the bottom half of the page, write a simple conventional sentence that describes the picture (e.g., “I like cookies!”).

   - Write the sentence correctly, using uppercase and lowercase letters, spaces between words, and an ending period. Say the words aloud as you write them. Talk about the spaces needed between words and why a period is necessary.
   - Read the sentence while tracking left to right with your finger.
5. Demonstrate the relevant phases of writing (i.e., 2 to 3 phases just above your children's current level) by writing the same sentences in any of the following ways. Model each phase quickly, but be animated in delivering the directions to increase engagement and attention.

- Phonemic manner
  - Say, “Here’s another way to write. If you know lots of letters and sounds, you could write your story like this.”
  - Say, “Help me write this sentence.” Using the children’s input write the same sentence phonetically using close letter-sound correspondences without focusing on the correct spelling (e.g., “I like cukez.”). Emphasize the sounds in the words using self-talk to demonstrate saying a word, thinking about the sounds, and choosing the letter(s) to use for each sound. Write the sentence using uppercase and lowercase letters, spaces between words, and an ending period.
  - Read the sentence while tracking left to right with your finger.

- Semiphonetic manner
  - Say, “If you know some of your letter sounds, you could write your story like this.”
  - Write the same sentence in a semiphonetic manner using the uppercase letter that represent the initial (or most recognizable) sound in each word (e.g., “I L K.”). Say, “Help me think of what this word starts with.” Emphasize the initial sound of each word and seek the children’s input for the letter needed to match the sound. Use uppercase letters for each initial sound, include word spaces, and end the sentence with a period.
  - Read the sentence while tracking left to right with your finger.

- Random Letter Stings
  - Say, “If you know a few letters, such as the letters in your name, you could write your story with the letters you know.”
  - Write the same sentence using random letters (e.g., “MDXX-OOMX.”). Ask what letters the children know, and use those as well as letters in the children’s names and familiar letters like x and o. Say the letter names while writing the sentence. End the sentence with a period.
6. Have children draw a picture and write about it on their own paper (for younger children) or in their journal (for older children). Encourage them to write using their “kid” or experimental writing by scaffolding their understanding of how words work, identifying the letter sounds, choosing the letters, and writing them.

7. When children complete their stories, have them read their sentences to you or another adult. If their written words are not recognizable, discreetly write the child’s story on the bottom or back of the page.
