

designer

textile designer

illustrator

PARIS

Bodice
Back

Bodice
Front

Sleeve

Skirt
Back

Skirt
Front

Photograph

VOGUE

Photograph

100th-anniversary issue cover

fashion model

STYLISH

VI-24

journalist

VOGUE BEAUTY

BEAUTY CLIPS

By Jennifer Scruby

Hair apparent When 17th-century courtesan Duchesse de Fontanges hitched up her tumbling curls with her lace garter, she created hairstyle history—and caught the attention of Louis XIV. Three centuries later, fashion monarch Karl Lagerfeld is resurrecting the fontange and sending it down Chanel runways with a nineties twist. For the spring collection, stylist Julien d'Is wound models' hair on rag rollers. BELOW, then added side curls. BOTTOM

LEFT, netting. BOTTOM RIGHT, and feathers. LEFT, to their tousled ringlets.

Suite smells The women of tomorrow had better be ready to take their perfume sitting down. Home fragrance, once confined to potpourri and room sprays, now comes couched in couches, arched and embedded in bedposts. New York artist Thomas Hucker dauses his furniture designs in scent and lets the perfume's personality do the talking (it dictates the color and texture of each piece). His floral-scented sidebar is sculpted of delicate rice paper and pale wood; a clove-perfumed table, of slate-colored stone.

A fitness revolution is storming Versailles, where a new spa has opened at the Trianon Palace—the four-star hotel named after and inspired by Marie Antoinette's 18th-century country chateau. Only 15 minutes from Paris, the spa offers everything from the latest Givenchy skin treatments to jogging paths through the royal park. "Let them eat rice cakes," the estate's former mistress, RIGHT, might have cried. Not to worry. A world-class chef is on the job.

Stick shift Today's lipsticks are laying on more than color. Ralph Lauren's new Satori Climate Response Lip SPF delivers skin care in sheer tints. Acacia's basil-and-peppermint formula freshens breath, and Cover Girl's Remarkable Lipcolor comes drenched with hydrating aloe extracts and one-third more pigment.

Proportion

men

8 heads

women

8 heads

child

5-6 heads

