

GIS: Using Aerial Photos to Create Maps

Summary

Aerial photos are an important source of information for maps. Using ArcView, a GIS data set can be constructed from a aerial photograph. This lessons walks through the process of digitizing features from a photo (or satellite image).

Materials

ArcView 3.x software

- dog2map.pdf
attached

Instructional Procedures

Instructional procedures are found in the document dog2map.pdf attached. The document is heavy with graphics and step-by-step screenshots.

Bibliography

Copyright © 1999 ESRI Canada

Authors

Utah LessonPlans