

Diana Meiser

Weber State University

<https://uen.pressbooks.pub/informationnavigator/>

Why OER?

Open Educational Resources save students money and help them engage with course content from before the first day of class. OER are easy to adopt, adapt, and create. I encourage institutions who are invested in student success to consider using OER in as many courses as possible.

Information Navigator

Project Summary

Weber State University's Stewart Library teaches a number of general education courses on information literacy. For these classes, we have developed an in-house, free textbook. Recently, we moved our textbook from Adobe Illustrator to the Pressbooks platform. This move allowed us to add more interactivity to the book, in addition to streamlining the accessibility components. The OER resources is now listed under a Creative Commons license and is free available for students to use and other interested parties to adopt and adapt.

INFORMATION NAVIGATOR

Diana Meiser
Engineering, Applied Science & Technology
Librarian
Weber State University, Stewart Library
dmeiser@weber.edu
(801) 626-7496

WEBER STATE UNIVERSITY

Conclusions or Future OER Plans

Future Plans: Continue to update Information Navigator and encourage use of Pressbooks as a publishing platform.

Tips / Advice for Faculty Using or Creating OER

Tip: Work on copyright permissions as soon as possible. Those will take the longest time.