Burden of Genius: Dr. Thomas Starl's Journey into Organ Transplantation

Monday, July 8 at 9 p.m.

The world of neuroscience has led to groundbreaking treatments for many mental illnesses but still has many unknowns. Narrated by stroke survivor Lotje Sodderland, Can You Fix A Brain Like Mine? follows scientists operating at the far-flung frontiers of neuroscience and takes an in-depth look at the moral and ethical implications of trying to “fix a broken brain.”

Sleep Deprived

Friday, July 17 at 8 p.m.

Do you think you got enough sleep last night? For many Americans, the answer is no -- and they may suffer devastating health consequences because of it. Insomnia, sleep apnea, restless leg syndrome and parasomnias are just some of the disorders keeping people awake at night. We’ll explore some of the most common sleep disorders and look into treatments ranging from medication to mindfulness.

Roads to Recovery: Overdose and Brain Injury

Friday, July 24 at 8 p.m.

When a person overdoses, their respiratory system is suppressed. If they survive, it’s likely they will live with some level of anoxic brain injury. The problem is the brain injury can impede treatment and recovery because of cognitive impairment and the loss of impulse control. The program looks at the science of overdose and brain injury with researchers, doctors, family of those who survive and policy makers. We examine the problems associated with overdose and look to solutions.
